

Autism Society
of North Carolina

My Brother is Going to College

My brother is going off to college.
This means that he will be living
at his new school.

This might make me sad that he
will not be living in my house.

It is okay to be sad.

Mom or dad might take me
to visit him at school.

He will come home to visit me!

He will come home for the holidays.

He will also come home for the summer!
I am going to miss my brother.

Fold page here to follow along

My Brother is Going to College (Continued)

He loves me and he is still my brother.

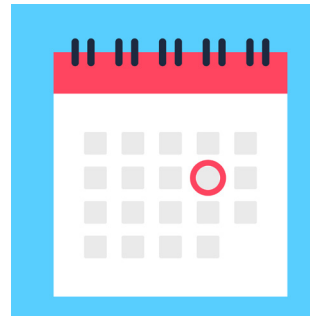

I can call him if I miss him.

I can write him
a letter or an email.

I can see him on FaceTime or on the computer. Even though I will miss my brother, I am excited for him.
It is okay to feel sad.

I can make a plan to talk with him.
I can write it on a calendar when I
will get to see him next.

It will be okay!

Fold page here to follow along

My Sister is Going to College

My sister is going off to college.
This means that she will be living at her new school.

This might make me sad that she
will not be living in my house.

It is okay to be sad.

Mom or dad might take me
to visit her at school.

She will come home to visit me!

She will come home for the holidays.

She will also come home for the summer!
I am going to miss my sister.

Fold page here to follow along

My Sister is Going to College (Continued)

She loves me and she is still my sister.

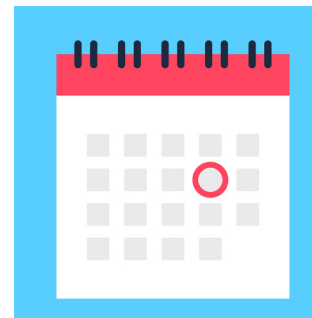

I can call her if I miss her.

I can write her
a letter or an email.

I can see her on FaceTime or on the computer. Even though I will miss my sister, I am excited for her.
It is okay to feel sad.

I can make a plan to talk with her.
I can write it on a calendar when I
will get to see her next.

It will be okay!

Fold page here to follow along