

I am not the Mask Police

This social narrative can be read in conjunction with the social narrative “Lifting Mask Mandates”

I can wear a mask if it makes me feel safe.

People have been wearing masks for the last two years.

I have worn a mask to keep myself and other people safe. Wearing a mask was the rule when COVID-19 was spreading to a lot of people.

The rule is changing about masks.

This rule was changed by the governor of North Carolina.

People will not have to wear masks inside now. It might make me nervous that people will not be wearing masks.

It is okay to be nervous. Even if I think people should be wearing masks, it is not my job to tell them.

I am not the mask police.
